RUSSIANS REACH GERMAN BORDER

NAZIS REPORT LOSS OF NORMANDY

Broken Seventh Army in Flight Toward Seine

Roar of Big Guns Heard in Paris

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Friday, Aug. 18 (AP)—American tank columns roared through chaotic, fleeing masses of German troops near the outskirts of Paris yesterday and a Berlin broadcast early today admitted frankly that the Nazis had lost the battle of Normandy and were trying to escape another large Allied trap.

Allied forces said the Americans were within thirty-five miles of Paris, but German reports placed them only twenty-three miles away.

Take Bastion Cities

Gen. George S. Patton's hard-hitting mechanized troops had overwhelmed four bastion cities before Paris, and were smashing against the Germans only twenty miles from the Seine river, where disorganized and badly-mauled Nazi Seventh army was massing tanks and ferries in a desperate attempt to escape annihilation.

The Normandy front was being liquidated by the Germans," said Dr. Max Krull, military correspondent of DNB, German news agency. German forces are retreating and most Allied troops are trying to gain new positions to outflank and encircle them.

An attempt of this sort is being made at Dreux where thrusts in several directions, including Paris, are being made. The lines are everywhere dented and interwoven in an extraordinary degree."

Barriers Awaits Troops

President Roosevelt, back in the capital today from his Pacific tour, informed the world that Germany and Japan will be occupied by Allied troops regardless of when or how they surrender.

There will be no repetition, he said, of the 1918 situation, when Germany escaped full occupation by quitting when her homeland was menaced.

HAPPY SMILES are easy for this little French miss and the old lady who carries her. They're pictured as they set out from a transit camp in France to return to their home in liberated Breezy, from which they fled when war rolled toward their town.

F.D.R. Promises Berlin and Tokyo Will Be Occupied

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17 (AP)—President Roosevelt, back in the capital today from his Pacific tour, informed the world that Germany and Japan will be occupied by Allied troops regardless of when or how they surrender.

There will be no repetition, he said, of the 1918 situation, when Germany escaped full occupation by quitting when her homeland was menaced.

Back from Long Trip

The president began catching up on routine business at the White House tonight after returning from a thirty-five-day trip that took him to Pearl Harbor and to Adak, in the Aleutian Islands.

He was met at the station by Secretary of State Hull. Later he conferred with General George C. Marshall, army chief of staff.

Tomorrow he will have his first fourth-term campaign strategy talk with his vice-presidential running mate, Senator Harry S. Truman of Missouri, whom he has not seen since they were nominated by the Democratic National convention a month ago.

Mr. Roosevelt's special train passed through twenty-one states during the two crossings of the continent, but he laughed at suggestions that some people thought his journey was like a "front line city" with the thunder of distant guns echoing in the streets, and that the Americans were attacking St. Arnoult, twenty-three miles from Paris, and Epernay, twenty-five miles from Versailles.

Americans Seize 5 Road Centers In South France

By EDWARD KENNEDY

ROME, Aug. 17 (AP)—Surging forward on a great thirty-mile arc deep in Southern France, the American Seventh army today seized five important road centers deep behind the original beachheads, and forward elements plunged more than thirty miles into the Maritime Alps in the drive to join with Allied forces in Northern France.

Along the coast the invasion armada drove through La Napoule, a village only four miles southwest of the famous resort town of Cannes. Allied headquarters announced late tonight.

The German high command communiqué said the Allies already had penetrated Cannes, and German broadcasts indicated the Nazis had little hope of holding the town.

Great Drive Continues

The greatest pincers movement in the war was under way as the American sledge-hammer drive moved into Draguignan, eighteen miles inland in a north-northwesterly direction from captured St. Raphael on the coast.

The town, a communications center with 11,000 population, lies on a main highway forty miles northeast of the great naval base of Toulon, and was the farthest inland of any towns specifically announced by headquarters as having been captured.

The advancing Seventh army also seized Vidauban, seven miles southwest of Draguignan, and in a southwesterly direction, the towns of Le Luc, Besse and Cuers, the latter eleven miles northeast of Toulon, and all road centers.

Toulon Next Objective

Maj. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's troops had seized a coastal strip extending almost to Toulon on the west to Cannes on the east today, and it was possible that already the assault on Toulon had begun.

Headquarters said the opposition thus far encountered in Southern France consisted of elements of two German divisions. About forty per cent of the enemy holding the area.

Drive for Seine Planned Months Before D-Day

By JAMES M. LONG

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Aug. 17 (AP)—The American Third army's mighty upturn to the Seine which has knocked the German army out of Northwestern France was planned months before D-Day by mapping tables of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and his general staff, who counted heavily on the daring of field commanders and fighting grit of American troops.

Nothing in the attack, it was disclosed tonight by a high officer of Gen. Eisenhower's staff, was improvised on off-the-cuff strategy.

Its whole execution of adapting the original plan to immediate front conditions, which admittedly did not fit with advance plotting, was in the hands of field commanders, through Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery and Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, now to Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., who saw to it that it worked.

Gen. Patton, who likes to ride out his campaigns right up in the assault wave of tanks, saw it through from a close to battle as he dared get.

The swiftest sweep since the Aranches breakthrough, this week's advance put the weather-hampered invasion at least back on schedule. Location of lines—and of the Falaise pocket—was not exactly the same as that spotted on the advanced plan but in total miles it was not much different.

Marines Reenact Their Glorious Past

LONDON (P)—The English channel was cleared of hundreds of Nazi floating mines on D-Day by United States Marines armed with rifles stationed in the rigging of auxiliary naval craft in the van of the invading fleet. Sharpshooters popped off the mines on the horizon as fast as they hove into view.

This expedient was chosen since it was impossible to sweep the waters clear of floating mines before D-Day without giving away the secret. Although novel in this war, the role of Marine sharpshooters in the rigging of vessels is as old as the corps.

A Long Exposure

DENVER (P)—Ed Eisenhand, Denver photographer, found a camera that hadn't been used for sixteen years. Developing the film inside, he made satisfactory pictures from it.

Gov. Dewey's Warning Against Power Politics

THE FIRM FORTHRIGHT AND TIMELY STATEMENT by Governor Dewey in which he sounded a warning against power politics appears to be having an excellent reaction.

That result is logical. Mr. Dewey has sharpened a distinction which too many have been failing to note—the distinction between the effectuation of peace through the existing military alliance of the four leading Allies and the effectuation of a world organization designed to bring about a just and durable peace.

Naturally peace, that is victory, must come through the united efforts of the United States, Great Britain, Russia and China. Without such united effort victory will be impossible. But this does not mean that these four nations shall dictate world collaboration nor dominate any peace organization to the exclusion of the other sovereign nations of the world. A world organization to prevent military aggression and to attain permanent peace must have the co-operation of all nations. Otherwise the postwar period will lapse into another era of power politics, which we must avoid as we should the plague. Power politics destroyed the valiant effort to preserve peace after World War I.

Military alliances to preserve peace are dubious, as history has shown. They may have produced peace for a time but they have never produced a lasting peace. Many of them have actually produced war.

Governor Dewey's declaration is timely as a warning to Russia that it cannot expect to boss the whole show after the victory is achieved.

And it is high time that this nation takes a firm stand in that respect. It has been entirely too timorous and appeasing in its attitude toward Russia. Stalin quite naturally will take advantage of every opportunity he can to further the interests of his nation in the political field. In fact, he has been doing so, while the United States, fearful of offending him, has remained passive when it should have been outspoken.

The Dewey statement should have a salutary effect and serve to strengthen not merely the position of this nation at the preliminary postwar conference to open next week at Dumbarton Oaks but strengthen also the cause of an enduring world peace, in which all nations, both large and small, must have a full voice and be assured of their full rights.

Occupations Of Paris

PARIS has thus far escaped the devastation of military onslaughts save for air bombardments of outlying industrial areas. It was declared an open city when the German hordes swept into France and when the French and English armies were routed its occupation was without damage.

The French capital seems now to be on the eve of occupation by the Americans and it is hoped bloodlessly. This will make the fifth time the city has been occupied by military forces of foreign powers during the existence of the United States as a nation. It will be different because the occupation will be by friend instead of foe with the help of the French army of the interior.

Within the last century and a half, the only determined defense at the gates of Paris was made toward the close of the Franco-Prussian war of 1870-71. The city was invested by the Germans in September, 1870, after their defeat of the French armies at Sedan, in which the French emperor, Napoleon III, had been taken prisoner.

Paris suffered intensely during that siege. The Germans bombarded the surrounding forts in December and the city itself in January. Paris capitulated January 28, 1871. It was agreed that the German troops should remain outside the city, but there was delay in the ratification of the armistice and they marched in for a brief period.

The rioting that followed the German withdrawal (the Paris Commune) did more damage to the city than had the previous bombardment.

The Hotel de Ville, the Palais de Justice and the Tuilleries were ravaged by incendiary fires and thousands died at the barricades before order was restored by French forces.

The Napoleonic era came to a close with the two occupations of Paris in 1814 and 1815. The Allies (Russia, Prussia, Austria and England) drove directly for Paris in March, 1814, while Napoleon was preparing to attack their rear in Lorraine. French forces outside Paris numbered 10,000, but without their great leader they put up only a half-hearted defense and the Allies occupied the capital March 30.

When Napoleon wanted to attack the foe in Paris, his marshals told him they had no hope of success. Parisians were trembling with dread of a French onslaught because it would mean destruction of the capital. The Allies were likely to avenge the burning of Moscow by burning Paris, and the marshals doubted that French soldiers would fight on the ruins of the city.

The Allies quit Paris at the end of May, 1814, but the city was re-occupied in June, 1815, after the final defeat of his armies at Waterloo.

Many of the art treasures taken by Napoleon from other capitals were returned to their rightful owners, but there was little damage to the city during the Allied occupation of 1814-15, and Paris remained the world's most beautiful capital.

The departure of the Nazis from France will signalize the liberation of France. This liberation by Americans will be another payment in kind. The liberation of the American colonies probably could not have been achieved without French aid at Yorktown in 1781. The liberation of France in 1918 could not have been achieved without American aid and the liberation of this nation this year will be due principally to the war contribution of the United States. The debt will have been well repaid.

No Doorn Likely For Nazi Gang

FOR MANY YEARS neutral Switzerland has offered asylum for fleeing foreigners on most liberal terms. It is significant that recently the Swiss Federal Council, meeting in Berne, drastically revised the rules under which outsiders may enter the country and find safe haven. Among the new stipulations is one excluding persons "who because of reprovable deeds appear to have made themselves unworthy of being given asylum."

That stipulation fits Hitler and his crowd to a nicely, and undoubtedly was adopted for that purpose. There had been rumors Hitler, Goering, Himmler even Mussolini would streak for Switzerland when the going became too rough in Germany. Undoubtedly the Nazi gang would be turned out if they tried to find sanctuary there. There is not a place in all Europe corresponding to Holland, which sheltered Kaiser Wilhelm following World War I.

With no place to go Hitler and his cohorts have no alternative but to stay on in Germany and urge a continuation of fighting. In doing this, they are making a brave pretense at bravery, a pose which no doubt is distasteful to many Germans now that the war has back-fired.

There is no doubt that the whole crowd of Nazi war lords would beat it out of Germany tomorrow if they could find security from Allied wrath elsewhere. There is no haven for them in Europe, perhaps none in all the world.

Women Workers a Postwar Problem

POSTWAR PLANNERS are encountering little difficulty finding things to worry about. A committee of the House headed by Rep. William M. Colmer, of Mississippi, has come up with what it regards as a major headache: the problem in the conversion era. It concerns 16,000,000 women now employed in industry, an increase of 3,000,000 in the last three years. The problem, as Representative Colmer sees it, will be to get these women to return to their homes and families.

When war industries sent out a call for women to replace dwindling manpower, the ladies responded quickly and in force. That they have been an important factor in keeping war production on schedule is admitted.

Now they don't want to quit, the Mississippi congressman has discovered in an intensive survey. They like to get a paycheck that is strictly their own. They enjoy the freedom from household drudgery which has been a woman's lot throughout the ages. And they have performed their duties so well factory executives say they have no thought of replacing them. Mr. Colmer may well be concerned, as are other members of his committee.

It never is easy to change a woman's mind, and that seems to be the problem in this particular situation.

In three years the dreams of those Axis Balkan states of what they could get out of the war has changed to wonder as to how to get out of it.

Since that brief case bomb nearly did for him Der Führer must have the screaming mummies every time he sees a lawyer heading his way.

American B-29's may be called roving ambassadors carrying diplomatic messages that Japan can understand.

Those Allied babies are plenty tough as the Japs will discover if they attempt to take Kandy from them.

It will be Gay Paree again when the Allied troops begin celebrating there.

Everybody Burns The Beans

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Don't be upset, it might happen to anybody. Every cook at some time or other, lets the string beans burn. It's the easiest thing in the world to do.

A housewife buys three pounds of beans and sits down in the late afternoon to string them. She goes outside and does them in the slanting rays of the sun, watching the birds and the flowers while her fingers are at work. She gets a half rest while she strings a potful of beans. It's a long job and she's glad when it's finished and that part of the evening meal is out of the way.

She puts them on the stove and starts preparing the rest of the meal. She sets the table. The children come home. The phone rings. Her husband arrives and starts talking about things that could just as easily wait. Her attention is distracted. She never gives another thought to those beans. And they BURN.

Nobody was looking. Nobody, apparently, was even smelling. So the beans burn. All of them. The pot is almost ruined. She wants to cry and to blame somebody. It MUST be somebody's fault when the beans burn.

No, it isn't. Everybody burns the beans. It happens in every household and nothing can be done about it. You forget them for a minute or two and they burn. There's something diabolical about string beans. They seem to know you don't want them to burn—so they go ahead and burn. Beans are like that and Life is Like Beans.

It burns too. It refuses to go calmly along without trouble. You must keep your eyes on it and you can't depend upon other people to watch your fire for YOU. You spent days, weeks, even years, getting your life in perfect shape and then you forget it for a while and come back to find it in a mess. You can't blame anybody and you can't accuse anybody else of carelessness and you can't do yourself any good by crying.

When the beans burn, you scrape the pot and have something else for supper. When your life gets burned you put that particular dream aside for a while and think about something else, from that sad experience.

The beans may burn but it isn't tragic unless you make it one.

The departure of the Nazis from France will signalize the liberation of France. This liberation by Americans will be another payment in kind. The liberation of the American colonies probably could not have been achieved without French aid at Yorktown in 1781. The liberation of France in 1918 could not have been achieved without American aid and the liberation of this nation this year will be due principally to the war contribution of the United States. The debt will have been well repaid.

Smokers who are charged up to twenty cents a package for cigarettes are urged to report these violations to the local War Price and Rationing Board so that suitable action can be taken against the violators.

The local ration board again warned motorists against the thousands of counterfeit A-11 gasoline coupons which are flooding eastern sections of the country. Service station operators are urged to be certain every A-11 coupon they accept is removed from a valid coupon book and that the motorist has indorsed the coupon.

Hot weather sufferers got a break when the stock exchange and curb boards of governors voted to suspend the next three Saturday sessions.

There were slowdowns after a lively opening and gains were reduced in the majority of cases toward the final hour. Bidding was renewed near the close, though, and improvement of fractions to 2 points for pivots was around the best of the day.

Favorites Reach Third-Round Play In P.G.A. Tourney

Nelson Defeats Fry, 7 and 6; McSpaden Trims Annon, 8 and 7

By RUSS NEWLAND

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 17 (AP)—Tournament Favorite Byron Nelson, of Toledo, O., ousted Mark Fry from the 1944 National P.G.A. golf championship today when he defeated the Oakland, Calif., entry, 7 and 6, in their thirty-six-hole round match.

After a battle altogether too close for comfort in the first eighteen, when he barely managed to hold a one-up lead, Nelson played even par golf for the third nine while Fry developed a streak of hooking that made his score soar to a 40. Nelson closed out the match on the thirty-ninth, after shooting the two previous holes in birdies.

Nelson toured the morning eighteen in 69 to Fry's 71. The latter blew up at the start of the second eighteen.

Willie Goggan, White Plains, N.Y., eliminated Tony Manero, Stamford, Conn., 4 and 3, and will meet Nelson in tomorrow's third round.

The other big tournament favorite, Harold McSpaden, of Philadelphia, barged into the third round with an overwhelming 8 and 7 win over Fred Annon, of Mamaroneck, N.Y.

Bob Hamilton, Evansville, Ind., put out Harry Bassler, Culver City, Calif., 6 and 5, after holding a four up margin at the twenty-seventh Hamilton shot a 35 to his rival's 40 on the third nine.

The first big upset of the tournament saw Charles Congdon, Tacoma, Wash., defeat Sam Byrd, Detroit, and third high money winner of the year, Congdon eliminated the former New York Yankee baseball player, 2 and 1. The Tacoma was three up at the twenty-seventh with a 35 to Byrd's 36.

Another reversal followed when Art Bell, San Francisco, beat the duration United States open champion, Craig Wood, of Mamaroneck, N.Y., 3 and 2. Wood was one up at the eighteenth and held the same advantage at the twenty-seventh.

TODAY'S FAIRGO SELECTIONS Rollie Hemsley Plays Last Game For the Duration

Yankee Catcher Will Be Inducted into U. S. Navy Today

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, Aug. 17 (AP)—Rollie Hemsley bowed out of baseball for the duration and probably for keeps today, with a personal vote of thanks for a job well done from President Ed Barrow, of the New York Yankees.

Rolling Hemsley, who discarded the rolling and settled down to consistent every-day big league catching when Joe McCarthy rescued him from the discard pile in an hour of need, will be inducted into the navy tomorrow morning.

Aside from a brief announcement the first time he came to the plate, there were no farewell ceremonies for Hemsley but President Barrow earlier took time to praise the 37-year-old veteran as a "true blue Yankee" in a personal pregame talk in his office.

McCarthy had a warm spot in his heart for the durable catcher who performed with six big league clubs during his seventeen-year stay in the big show. Hemsley had done two turns with Cincinnati and one each with Pittsburgh and Chicago in the National and St. Louis and Cleveland in the American when he was handed his unconditional release by the Reds on July 17, 1942.

Buddy Rosar picked a torrid July 19 weekend with a Sunday double-header coming up to leave the Yanks and rush home for Buffalo to take a police force examination.

McCarthy, grasping for anything, offered Hemsley, a free agent, Rollie both ends of a twin bill and almost collapsed from the heat and exhaustion in the finale but made himself a place on the New York payroll that has been good for two World Series slices.

When Bill Dickey joined the navy during spring training, McCarthy was left with Hemsley as the only catcher with big league experience. Strictly on the straight and narrow since joining New York, Hemsley this year caught eighty-one of 111 games, hitting .269 and including twelve doubles, five triples and two homers in his seventy-five hit total. He has driven in twenty-four runs.

Hemsley's induction was delayed ten days by a transfer from his Vienna, Mo., board to New York. After passing his physical June 23, he had been ordered to report August 8 but the date was pushed back by transfer of the papers.

in sad but loving remembrance of our dear wife and mother, Minnie V. Robison Crowe, who passed away one year ago, August 18, 1943.

You're gone dear mother, gone forever, and we miss your smiling face, but you left us a rich legacy, one that no one else can take in place. You left behind some broken hearts that loved you most sincere. They never did, nor never will forget you Mother Dear.

Sadly missed by husband and daughter, I. W. CROWE AND DATAH 8-16-31-NT

In loving memory of Carol Louise Edwards, daughter of Alice Edwards Steiner, who passed away 5 months ago, March 11, 1944.

Our angels have taken you, Carol, to God in his wisdom and love. For he needed another sweet angel, to blossom in heaven above.

God in his mercy grant that we'll meet you sweetheart, up there when you hear me, Carol.

Day up there in the heavenly blue, Carol, we'll be together again.

How much I've thought, dear, of you know you'll be happy in Heaven, that Angelic choir way up there.

And then we'll be together and joy and peace from all care.

Greatly and sadly missed by MOTHER 8-16-31-NT

In loving memory of our beloved wife and mother, Frances McKenzie, who died one year ago today, August 18, 1943.

Dealers Report Critical Shortage Of Gasoline Here

Say Tanks May Be Dry by Tuesday Unless Quotas Are Increased

Burdened with a critical gasoline shortage and with no relief in sight, wholesale and retail dealers last night reported their tanks are "likely to be dry" by Tuesday.

The shortage was anticipated last month, reliable sources indicated, pointing out that the supply this month is but fifty per cent of what was available in August 1942.

One dealer said he has been trying to get additional gasoline for more than a month but still has no reason to be optimistic. The situation, he added, is very likely to continue through September and October.

Full Quotas Received

This same dealer explained that he and other dealers are operating under the Dodge plan, a government-approved plan for the equitable distribution of gasoline, which allocates a certain amount of fuel, and no more, to each dealer.

Each dealer gets a monthly allocation, he pointed out, with one-third of the allocation being delivered every ten days. Some retailers, the dealer said, have already received their full supply for August, have not rationed amounts sold carefully and now have been forced to put up signs advising motorists they have "no gas." These retailers, unless quotas are increased, will not have any gasoline available before the first of September.

June figures were used as a basis for cutting gasoline supplies here twenty per cent this month, a dealer reported, bringing them down to but half the amount available two years ago.

This cut coupled with the unusual demand for gasoline because of traffic to and from the races at Fairgo account for the shortage and dwindling supply, the dealer explained.

Shortage is General

The shortage, however, the dealer added, seems to be more or less general throughout the Eastern seaboard and he reported that on the last ten days of July retailers on the Pennsylvania turnpike would not sell gasoline to any motorist whose automobile tank was one-quarter full.

The present shortage, one dealer said, is the most critical since August 1943.

Reports on Camp Made at Meeting Of Kiwanis Club

Reports on the operation of the Kiwanis Sunshine camp the last two weeks in July and the first two weeks in August were given at the meeting of the Kiwanis club here yesterday at noon, with John P. Rodman, chairman of the operating committee in charge.

Rodman said twenty-five boys attended the camp the first two weeks and twenty-five girls the final two weeks of the camping period, adding that the cost of operating the camp was a little over $1,100. He praised the work of Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Patrick, the camp directors and the entire staff, as well as members of the club who served on various committees.

Miss Jeanette Bonig, executive secretary of the Associated Charities, who selected the children for the camp, said that the club was doing a good job in giving underprivileged children an opportunity to spend two weeks at the camp. She told how the children were selected and gave the Kiwanians an insight into some of the problems which arise in picking children for the camp.

Patrick told of the daily activities in which the children engaged, and said that 1,220 quarts of milk were given the children in the four weeks and that the average gain in weight was four pounds per child.

The camp director lauded the club for making it possible to give the children two weeks in the sunshine, wholesome food and a well-balanced program of activities. Patrick told the members of the club that he believes some plan should be worked out so the Kiwanians could keep in touch with the children throughout the year and advocated a "Sunshine Club" with meetings being held at the camp at regular intervals.

The club presented Mrs. Patrick a $50 war bond in appreciation of her splendid work during the four weeks the children were in camp.

Guests at the meeting in addition to Mr. and Mrs. Patrick, were their daughter Ann, Mrs. M. E. Hartzel, Miss Elizabeth Lowndes, Miss Jeanette Bonig, Miss Loretta Carney, Miss Evelyn Lashley, Miss Wilma Tomson and Ensign John Oliver of the navy.

Mrs. Bosley Asks Dismissal of Suit Over Insurance

Says She Had Agreement with Former Tenant about Policy

Declaring she had a definite agreement with John C. Reager that she was to hold his life insurance policy with the understanding that she would use part of the proceeds to pay for his funeral expenses and apply the balance on his indebtedness to her, Mrs. Ethel Bosley, his former landlady, asked dismissal in circuit court yesterday of his suit in which he charged she refused to surrender the policy to him on demand.

Reager, in his action, declared he gave the policy to Mrs. Bosley for safekeeping, but Mrs. Bosley asserted that she received the policy from a third party upon guaranteeing to the third party that she would see a note he signed for Reager would be paid.

Note Is Paid

The note, Mrs. Bosley declared, was paid after Reager received a payment from the insurance company because of his loss of sight.

Mrs. Bosley denied that when Reager moved from her home where he had boarded he requested the return of the policy and she added that she made no promises to re-deliver the policy to him.

In November 1943, Reager asked her for the policy but later told her "just let it go the way it is," Mrs. Bosley asserted. When she moved to New Jersey, she added, first Reager and then his attorney, Estel C. Kelley, wrote to her asking her to return the policy.

Denying that she has violated any trust or agreement as Reager charged, Mrs. Bosley said it remains her intention to hold the policy, collect the proceeds on his death, pay his funeral expenses and apply the balance to his indebtedness to her.

Paid Premiums

In October 1940, Reager told her he was going to drop the policy, Mrs. Bosley said, because he no longer could pay the premiums. She added that she paid $5.95 in premiums on the policy the day before it would have been void and that the premiums not been paid and that she continued to pay the premiums until he received a settlement because of blindness in March 1941.

She related that he later repaid her for all the premiums she paid on the policy with the exception of the $5.95 paid to prevent the policy from becoming void.

Plans for Greater Cumberland Fair

Prospects and plans for a greater fair and plant were discussed at the annual dinner of the directors of the Cumberland Fair Association last night at the jockey club at Fairgo.

The dinner, a square chicken menu, was served by the H. M. Stevens Co., Inc., the sole concessionaire of the fair, a national organization with an established reputation under the direction of Thomas Di Natale, maitre d'hotel of the Stevens company.

It was brought out that the continued success of the fair amidst wartime conditions has attest to its growing popularity in this area to a marked degree and that with the reconversion outlook well settled for Cumberland under blueprints prepared by the municipal planning commission and the prospects of continued industrial operation in the postwar period, the fair will expand correspondingly. Plans for gradual plant expansion were discussed to be well in hand.

Clifton W. White, president and general manager of the association, presided at the dinner and brief talks were made by Di Natale, F. Brooke Whiting, J. William Hunt editor of the Cumberland Sunday Times, and William L. Geppert, managing editor of The Cumberland News.
